

NOURISH SCOTLAND

FRIDAY 30 SEPTEMBER AND

SATURDAY 1 OCTOBER 2011

Pearce Institute in Govan, Glasgow

The new food economy: towards a secure and sustainable future for food in Scotland

This conference explores the challenges and opportunities for making Scotland's food system fairer, greener, smarter, healthier and wealthier.

From square foot gardening to feeding nine billion people in 2050, from reducing obesity to city-region food plans, from farm subsidies to meat and methane, we join up the dots.

The conference is for food producers, processors, retailers and caterers of all shapes and sizes; for local authorities and health boards interested in equity, sustainability and public health; for community food groups and food co-ops; for NGOs working on environmental and social justice, and for any thoughtful and committed citizens interested in where their next nine meals are coming from.

www.nourishscotland.org.uk

SPEAKERS INCLUDE

Richard Lochhead
Cabinet Secretary

Professor Maggie Gill
former Chief Scientist

George Lyon
MEP, Rapporteur on CAP reform

Kirtana Chandrasekaran
Friends of the Earth International

James Withers
Scotland Food and Drink

Andrew Whitley
Real Bread Campaign

Mike Small
Fife Diet

Bill Gray
Community Food and Health Scotland

Chair • Lesley Riddoch

To book, go to www.nourishscotland.org.uk
For more information contact Lisa Tennant, lisa@nourishscotland.org.uk

Local lunches and homemade cakes

WORKSHOPS INCLUDE

- Reaching low income groups
- Skilling up for the new food economy
- Developing a city food policy
- Setting up a community bakery
- Speculation and food prices
- Getting access to land for growing

tickets

Organisations
£65 one day, £100 for both days

Individuals
£10 each day